Description of Findings

After replacement of dual capacitor the heat pump is now receiving the full power required and the the condenser fan motor has failed and the defrost board is sending inconsistent voltage to the motor. The compressor is struggling and sounds like there is valve damage so the compressor is likely damaged also. In order to verify the condenser fan motor, propeller, and defrost board would need to be replaced. Also in order to get accurate refrigerant reading these repairs would need to be made first. This unit supplies the server room and is 27 years old and needs to be replaced as more repairs will be needed. The recent repair cost would be able to be applied to system replacement and is strongly recommended. Will inquire as to part and pricing availability and get an estimate for system replacement and replacement with a mini split system.
