The batteries are about 1/3 the cost of each unit. I do not think I will be able to push any further at this time.

James,

The leasing company is investing approx. $350,000 to replace the batteries, which covers the major maintenance cost for these units.

Combined with the $185,000 savings over four years they may not be open to reducing their monthly rate.

If they are not open to a lower monthly rate see if they can include replacement tires, or some other item which could save us additional maintenance expenses.

They may be more open to this. Either way it is still a $45,000 savings per year for SHIP8.

Thanks for making this recommendation to help reduce costs.

Hi James:

If we are keeping the existing equipment for four more years, I think we can negotiate to a much better price. Please try harder to bargain with Lift power. Those equip already aged and life time is limited. It's a favor to Lift Power if we continue to lease for 4 more years. Thanks

I am proposing to keep these lifts with new batteries. I feel confident that these lifts will last with new batteries. I am still collecting some more quotes and information to sell our current old Toyota fleet and purchase newer lifts, but the ones we are still leasing are still good lifts.
