Mount Kilimanjaro, The Top of Africa

Inspired from the snow of Kilimanjaro, the top of Africa. Kilimanjaro is a mountain with snow all the year round at an altitude of 5,892 meters, the highest mountain in Africa. The most commendable thing is that although it is close to the equator, the top of the mountain is covered with ice and snow all the year round. It is a dormant volcano and a snowy mountain, where ice and fire coexist, adding a mysterious color to Mount Kilimanjaro. As far as the connotation of the novel is concerned, this is a work on "death", which shows the author's attitude towards death objectively and his psychological process from fear to calm, thus fully reflecting Hemingway's "grace under pressure" on which he became famous. The whole novel is constructed by dialogue between characters, and its style is simple.

Design Concept :

- The combination of square and circle is used to outline a simple shape, with clear and smooth lines, strong sense of three-dimensional space and layering, and unique artistic charm.
- The square shape of metal and the circle shape of plaster stone, the classic color matching of black and white, are an excellent combination of modern technology and natural materials, presenting novel and unique artistic effects.
- Natural alabaster is elegant and white, with delicate texture and clear texture. It is made by hand, and every detail is different. When the dusk clears and the night falls, it is white and transparent under the light, and the soft light shines with warmth in every corner.
